

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Sees a Smart Frock on Chestnut Street. She Talks of the Heyniger-Savage Engagement. Miss Norris to Wed

I SAW Mrs. John Barnes Townsend on Chestnut street yesterday looking unbelievably cool in a blue and white handkerchief linen frock, the background of the material being white, with little pin dots in the pattern and blue appearance was that of an all-blue frock. Her hat was a round model of dark blue Neapolitan straw, trimmed with white and blue ribbons and white and blue silk stockings and white and blue shoes. She was accompanied by Miss Edna J. Nagle, who had just returned from a trip to Maine.

MARION SAVAGE'S engagement, announced yesterday, was a bit of a surprise to some. I think an engagement where one or the other is not a Philadelphia man is apt to be a surprise to those strictly in the know, except for those who do not see the engaged pair as much together. When both of them live right in our midst we are apt to suspect an engagement, yet when they are seen out walking together several times and we all have them engaged. But as you know, Nancy gets into things in the most peculiar way, and you remember what she sometimes does, you sometimes see a girl who is very attractive and who she was sure was engaged to a man from out of town.

Well, what more do you want me to tell you? Marion Savage is the eldest daughter of the Charles Chavney Savages of Chestnut Hill. She made her debut several years ago, if I remember rightly. She has two younger sisters who have not yet been introduced to society—Pauline and Grace. Her brothers are Arthur, Henry, Ernest and William, who was killed during the war. The Savages are all great big brothers, and Marion's father and her five children are all graduates, Bill having finished this last year.

Marion's fiance is Charles Lambert Heyniger, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sinclair Heyniger, of Lansing, N. Y. The Savages are spending the summer at their cottage in Montauk.

I HEAR that Mrs. Gardner Cassatt and her daughters, Ellen and Eugenie, will sail for home at the end of this month. They have been in Europe since early in June and have been visiting their mother and father in France. Ellen went over to England for a time to attend the Girl Scouts' convention. You know she is deeply interested in that work and was one of the first in this city. There were less than six years ago, and there are some 4000 scouts in Philadelphia and its suburbs already.

Ellen Cassatt is a very interesting girl, and her mother, Mrs. Gardner Cassatt, is vice commissioner. Elizabeth Fox, of Torredale, is another girl who is devoted to Scout work, and has had the most interesting time in her charge. Mrs. Newbold Taylor is another member of the club, and there are several more who work hard with the girls and for them. It is a very interesting thing, and girls will find it very interesting. I have been amazed at the little ones of twelve and fourteen, washing babies, ironing their clothes, doing their own laundry, swimming, etc. I can't remember all of the things they do, but they are really splendid.

OF COURSE, Narragansett folk are all agog to attend the wedding of Dorothy Norris and Raoul Alevea. The engagement was announced just about a year ago, and now it has been decided to have the wedding in September. The exact date to be determined by the time of Lieutenant Alevea's arrival in this country. He is a Rumanian, you know, and he is a mission man, and he is from Vladivostok for his country. He sailed from Japan August 7, and will probably reach Narragansett in a couple of weeks. The wedding is to take place at the Narragansett Hotel, and Miss Norris and Dorothy returned from Japan and China and other Asiatic countries just about six weeks ago. Dorothy's wedding is announced very shortly after their arrival here. Dorothy has such original ways of doing things that I feel sure her wedding will be a decidedly unique affair, and it is worth a trip to Narragansett to attend. The Norrises know so well how to entertain that I for one do not intend to miss it.

NANCY WYNNE.

COMEDY FEATURES NEWEST MOVIES

Week's Screen Favorites Include Enid Bennett, Marjorie Daw, Claire Whitney and Jack Pickford

Stanley—"Don't Ever Marry" is a marital comedy. In fact, it is one of the bright sort which comes to the screen too infrequently. Marshall Neilan shows his fine hand of direction in this piece and it also gives the movie fans a change in his style of direction, for they have just enjoyed his "The River's Edge" to be one of the melodramatic masterpieces of the last year.

Palace—"A Common Level" tries to show that the modern man is nothing but a creature of the moment. The new way of doing the same thing. The stone age had its rocks, and today the modern man has his "rocks." Burton Kink, the director, tries to depict this change in the modern man's life in a very interesting way. As a contrast to the modern man, there is a revival of Charles Chaplin's "The Immigrant," a good comedy.

Regent—"Hatpins" often have a lot to do with the appearance of the female sex. In this picture, the female sex is the male. This story is by C. Gardner Sullivan, whose versatile pen has written many scenarios for the screen, and in this one he employs a "sure-fire" theme. Fred Niblo, husband of the star, directed it, and the result is a very good production throughout.

Arcadia—"A Double-Dyed Deceiver" has evidently deceived its director. At least it has deceived the audience. It could be impressive, effective and realistic as a fun-carrier of Texas, who had a really tough time of it. The picture is a very good one, and the result is a very good production throughout.

Chester—"The Garden of Allah," like "Ramona," is another picture which was made a few years ago. It was not shown to the Philadelphia movie fans until yesterday afternoon. Its engagement with the Stanley Company was the result of a production at its western studio and its pictorial quality shows the desert picture with the newer photographic effects.

Helen Ware, who has not been seen in this city for some time in spoken drama, is the featured player and her intense work will bring forth memories of her splendid emotional acting in past plays. The picture is a very good one, and the result is a very good production throughout.

Victoria—"Winter Days" is a touching story by Mary Roberts Riney. The picture is a very good one, and the result is a very good production throughout.

For muffins, cakes and pastries there is no showing like imported Pompeian Olive Oil

Photoplays Elsewhere

METROPOLITAN—"Up in Mary's Attic," a film farces from from Ripstick comedy. In addition to a boy of bathing girls in a beach revue, also some specialties. GREAT NORTHERN—"A Fool and His Money," a picture of a man who has lost his money and is trying to get it back. IMPERIAL—"Old Lady Thirty One," with Emma Dunn. LOCUST—"Below the Surface," with Hobart Bosworth. STRAND—"Let's Be Fashionable," with Douglas MacLean and Doris May. CEDAR—"Shepherd of the Hills," with MacLean and May. BELMONT—"Love's Protege," with Douglas MacLean and May. JUMBO—"Huckleberry Finn," with Douglas MacLean and May. WEST ALLEGHENY—"The House of the Seven Gables," with Douglas MacLean and May. COLIBRIN—"The Courage of Margaret O'Donnell," with Douglas MacLean and May. LANTANA—"The Fourteenth Man," with Robert Warwick.

Lawson Butt is the head of the plant, who is a very good actor. He is the brother of the actor who is in the picture. The picture is a very good one, and the result is a very good production throughout.

Ernest Evans and a talented company of dancers put a varied and good music mark the show. The Primrose Minstrels offer new songs and dances amid spectacular surroundings. Four sing some of the newest songs in a clever sketch. Entertaining acts were presented by Edna Aug, comedienne and pianist, and Helen Ware, a very good dancer.

Walton Roof—Gorham's Revue is presented this week in new production. Several fascinating new specialties are introduced by the score of talented entertainers. The model attraction is Jack Rogers and the Gorham sisters in versatile dancing.

Grand—Kramer and Boyle, a happy-go-lucky pair, are a clever headline attraction. The Glencoe trio, in a novelty offering, was a close second. Other acts which scored a decided hit were Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, in a clever sketch, and the comedy duo, West and Van Sice, in a musical act of more than ordinary merit and the Forts, in an original and amusing play. Photoplays rounded out a good bill.

PHILADELPHIA GIRL IS LIKED AT KEITH'S

Miss Eufemia Giannini Wins Hearts of Audience—Other Vaudeville Bills in City

Keith's—Miss Eufemia Giannini, in "Apache Honor," a dramatic playlet, won her way into the hearts of Philadelphians with her wonderful voice and splendid acting at Keith's last night. Miss Giannini, who was born and raised here and who is a daughter of a former city councilman, has but recently returned from Italy, where she appeared in grand opera. Her voice is one of great range and is under complete control. The sketch is by Victor Giannini. Homer Mason and Marguerite Keeler have an excellent amusement vehicle in "Married." Mr. Mason's portrayal of a "drunk" has just the right amount of burlesque to make it funny.

Hilda Carling, billed as "prima ballerina" from the Royal Opera House of Stockholm, makes her first appearance in America. Miss Carling is accompanied by several corpses in a number of dances. The stage sets are quite pretty. The dancing is far below the standard set by first-class vaudeville offerings.

Others on the bill were Redford and Winchester, in a lot of nonsense; Fred Wayne, Lorette Marshall and Trucilla Candy in a sketch called "The Blue Truster"; Eddie Borden, accompanied by "Sir" Frederick Courtney; Joe Cook, who is a show in himself, and the Amaranth sisters, in a dancing duo.

Ernest Evans and a talented company of dancers put a varied and good music mark the show. The Primrose Minstrels offer new songs and dances amid spectacular surroundings. GALA OPERA SEASON EXPECTED IN PHILA.

Large Seat Sale is Reported. Alterations Being Made on Academy Stage

One of the most brilliant opera seasons in the history of the city is anticipated. The Metropolitan Opera Co. will return and the subscription sale for seats at the Academy of Music is unusually large and it is expected to increase as the season approaches.

Peter Clark, an expert engineer, has scores of workmen engaged in renovating the Academy and making important alterations to the stage. The large organ has been removed, making possible the enlargement of the parquet floor and the installation of 200 additional seats.

People's—This playhouse opened its new season with "Maid of America," a well-known burlesque aggregation, which gave a lively summer show. The scenes, prettily set, are the background for its jazzy revue, "Varieties a la Mode." Two satires, one on small society in the suburbs and the other on muckrakers, won applause. Bobby Barry and George Leon have costumes via for funmakers. During the summer vacation the house has been renovated and redecorated.
